to keep the laws. He always had, he said.

Told to sell all he had, give to the poor and follow Jesus, the man went sorrow-

unless they received these innocent little ones and became like them, they could not enter into the kingdom. A rich young man, a ruler, came to Jesus, being troubled because his life was incomplete. "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" he asked. Keep the law. Jesus told him. He answered that he had done so all his life. Then the Lord told him to sell all his riches, distribute them to the poor, and to follow Him. But the rich young ruler felt that was more than he could do, and he riches of the spirit and satisfaction would this charming young man have received if he had given up his wealth and followed his Master. But he loved riches too much.

"How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God! For it is easier for a camel to go through a neede's eye than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God." Riches are not in themselves harmful, but when one is fonder of his wealth than of his soul's well-being, it is indeed hard, almost impo for him to achieve eternal life.

There is no man that hath left house, or parents, or brethren, or wife, or children, for the kingdom of God's sake, who shall not receive manifold more in this present time, and in the world to come life everlasting." Jesus then tried to tell his followers about His coming trial. scourging and death, but they could not seem to understand. He then took the twelve and started toward Jerusalem, and as they blind man, hearing the noise of many people passing, asked what cried out in a loud voice. "Jesus. thou son of David, have mercy on me." The disciples tried to hush him, but Jesus heard him and had him brought before Him. When He heard the man's request He said: "Receive thy sight: thy faith hath saved thee." And immedifollowed Him, glorifying God, and all the people, when they saw it,

THE COURAGE of George Washington and his men enabled a little group of colonies to win a war from the world's most powerful empire. But not all of his great heroes, plus all the King's horses and all the King's men, could find a way to take two even though they be working together heart and soul in a single cause as they are today. That was tried, however, recently, by one of the world's greatest players, who is still enjoying the laugh at himself. It should prove consoling to ordinary mortals for the mistakes can be funnier than his. ♠ A 10 7 3
